With the FreeUkuleleTuner application, you can tune your ukulele to various pitches and frequencies. Essential tool for ukuleleists Also, the main benefit of this tool is that it allows you to tune the ukulele in real time, without having to use a metronome. The program's interactive approach makes it easy for beginners and experts to learn how to tune the ukulele. For instance, one can tune in a low C note, then move to the one a third higher. When this note is clicked, the program plays it; when the same chord is clicked a second time, it plays it a third higher. By repeating this process, the user can get a feel for the different pitch between each of the chords. The interactive feature allows you to replay each chord as many times as you want, while the program lets you know each time a pitch is different, as it is more clearly audible. Moreover, FreeUkuleleTuner is ideal for those who seek to play music on the ukulele but find it hard to keep the correct finger positions and control as they play chords. The program allows users to learn and practice to keep their chords in tune. Finding a suitable pitch To tune in the ukulele, the program enables you to move through the pitches by clicking on the 'Go to' button and selecting a given chord. This way, you can easily play chords one after another and see how each pitch sounds, which can be important to those who don't know how an ukulele should sound. If you are a beginner, you can start out by tuning in the ukulele to a low C note. As you repeat this process, your hands will get better at keeping the chords in place. Alternatively, if you are an ukulele player, you can get started by adding chords to a key your ukulele is tuned to, to see how they sound when tuned to different pitches. Once you are familiar with how a chord plays out at different pitches, you can use this knowledge to create your own chords. Tuning in chords using FreeUkuleleTuner The FreeUkuleleTuner application allows you to set a desired pitch, and then quickly and easily play chords by clicking on a given chord. If you hear that it is wrong, simply click on the chord again and select another one. If
